

Your World Has Been Turned Upside Down

The last thing you need is a tax bill for income you'll never see.

Despite improvements in the housing sector, a struggling economy has caused many responsible American families to sell their homes in a short-sale or negotiate a much needed mortgage modification with their lender.

Right now 5.3 million homes are still underwater and another 1 million families are in the process of foreclosure.

Unless Congress acts, hundreds of thousands of American families who did the right thing will have to pay tax on “phantom income”—money they never see.
